Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 18.-After an interesting discussion of the fundamental principles of Congregational ism, the National Congregational council last night adopted resolutions broadening the scope of the duties of its moderator. Prior to the term of Retiring Moderator Amoy H. The convention adopted resolutions commending Moderator Bradford and instructing the new moderator to interpret his resition generously as hav-

The losses on both sides have been enormous, but this is for gotten in the crowding of dreadful events upon each other. The fighting still continues without intermission.

The report of the operations of the Russian left wing is still three days old and since that time no news has been received from this column. The situation at this date may be described as follows: General Kuropatkin has slightly advanced his center, reoccupying Shakhe, south of the Shakhe river. Directly behind him, at a distance of nine miles, lies the Hun river, and across the bridges spanning this stream the Russians must retire in case they retreat on Mukden. General Kuropatkin must continue to firmly hold his center and right flank in order to prevent the Japanese getting possession of the Hun river bridges. Thus he will cover the withdrawal of his apparently beaten west wing.

There is still considerable uncertainty as to the disposition of his left column. Certainly it has not returned to Mukden; whether it is again advancing after its first withdrawal is not known.

RECEIVING SHIP ON FIRE.

Stubborn Blaze on the Hancock Is Finally Put Out.

New York, Oct. 18.-Fire was decected early Monday on the United States receiving ship Hancock at the New York navyyard.

It is not known how long the fire in the Hancock had been burning when discovered, but judging from the progress it had made it must have been several hours. The fireman had occasion to open a water tight compartment leading to a coal bunker when he found that the place was filled with smoke. In spite of the utmost exertion it was several hours before the seat of the flames could be reached. Meantime the smoke invaded every part of the ship and at one time it was almost overpowering in the officers' diningroom. By shifting large quantities of coal in the bunkers the firemen got to the seat of the trouble, but it was not until afternoon that the fire was completely put out. The Hancock is the most important receiving ship in the navy, usually having a thousand sailors and newly enlisted men aboard awaiting assignment. The cause of the fire is shrouded in mys-

Gold In the State Bank and Government Treasury Amounts to More Than 700,000,000 Rubles - Russia Can Meet War Expenses Without Any New Lonns.

The financial condition of Kussia, with particular reference to the ability of the government to meet enormous | For Rent-The Stratton Hotel, 214 5th war expenses, was discussed the other night by Gregory Vilenkine, financial agent of the Russian embassy at Washington, says the New York Tribune. When asked regarding reports that Russian finances had been sorely taxed by the burden of the war Mr. Vilen-

"Yes, I have found that such an impression has gained ground in this country to some extent. Some foreign papers lately mentioned excessive issues of Russian bank notes, and I therefore deem it my duty to acquaint the public with the real condition of affairs. According to the imperial ukase of Aug. 29, 1897, government bank notes are issued by the state bank in amounts strictly limited by the urgent needs of money circulation under gold security. The sum of gold securing the notes must not be less than half of the total sum of bank notes issued for circulation, when the latter does not exceed 600,000,000 rubles. A ruble is equal to 77 cents in American money. Bank notes which are in circulation over and above 600,000,000 rubles must be secured by gold at a rate of at least ruble for ruble. In 1904 there were issued up to August last bank notes to the amount of 130,000,-000 rubles and the month of August of the current year 40,000,000 rubles. Thus the total sum of bank notes put into circulation amounted to 800,000,-000 rubles.

"The gold reserve consisted at the end of August, 1904, of 944,000,000 rubles-namely, gold in circulation, 125,000,000; gold in bars, coin and assignments sanctioned, 728,000,000; gold abroad, 91,000,000; total, 944,000,000. Taking into consideration that the gold security for bank notes has been fixed by the ukase of Aug. 29, 1897, at 50 per cent for the first 600,000,000 rubles issued and at a rate of ruble for ruble for the following issues, the gold reserve securing 800,000,000 rubles in bank notes issued for circulation need not exceed 500,000,000 rubles, while it has reached 944,000,000 rubles—that is, there exists a surplus of 444,000,000 rubles, not including the large gold reserve in the government treasury, which is not entered within the balance of the state bank. These reserves consist of gold in bars and coin in the St. Petersburg mint, and sums in the hands of foreign correspondents abroad. "The issues of bank notes were brought about by two causes. The first cause was the deduction from the current account of the government treasury for military expenditures in the far east, where the expenses are paid in bank notes, and the second simultaneously with the same, the beginning of the revival of commercial transactions which takes place in the second half of each year with the beginning of the grain campaign, compelling the issue of large sums from the state bank. It must be noticed that the bank notes issued on account of the fall development of commercial transactions generally return to the bank at the end of the strained period of the grain campaign. These occurrences are repeated every year. Thus, in 1902 the revival of commercial transactions in the fall months demanded an increase of money placed in circulation by 156,000,000 rubles and in 1903 by 177,000,000 rubles.

"In the current year the demand for bank notes for commercial transac- GOING NORTH tions must be considerable, as the crops in many regions of the empire are abundant, while at the same time in some foreign countries importing our grain the crops are unsatisfactory, a fact which will bring about an increase of exports.

"At the end of half a year from the beginning of military operations the comparative figures on the amount of our gold reserve in conjunction with the bank notes issued stand as follows: On Feb. 1 of the current year the gold reserve of the State bank consisted of 915,100,000 rubles, while there were only 598,600,000 rubles of bank notes in circulation. By Aug. 1, 1904, the gold reserve of the State bank consisted of 948,700,000 rubles, while there were only 695,300,000 rubles in bank notes in circulation.

"As a whole, the war expenditures of Russia from the beginning of the campaign until the end of the year may be approximately placed at from 625,000,-3rd—Two fine through trains direct to | 000 to 650,000,000 rubles. With regard to the means for the covering of this 4th-A saving of about three hours in expenditure unforeseen by the budget it must be remarked that the reserve in the government treasury by Jan. 1, 1904, consisted of 312,000,000 rubles, and after the covering of all outstanding expenditures, according to the budget of 1904, it amounted to 130,-000,000 rubles, to which sum there must be added 135,000,000 rubles of tions and a complete guide to the fair, economies realized by the curtailing $26.85 TO ST. A., of already sanctioned expenditures for the current year; also 282,000,000 rubles realized from the lease of 5 per cent treasury bonds and 150,000,000 rubles from the 3.6 per cent treasury bills. The government treasury thus has at its disposal approximately 700,-000,000 rubles, which is quite sufficient for the covering of the above expendi-

Gold In the State Bank and Government Treasury Amounts to More Than 700,000,000 Rubles - Russia Can Meet War Expenses Without

with particular reference to the ability of the government to meet enormous war expenses, was discussed the other night by Gregory Vilenkine, financial agent of the Russian embassy at Washington, says the New York Tribune. When asked regarding reports that Russian finances had been sorely taxed by the burden of the war Mr. Vilenkine said:

"Yes, I have found that such an impression has gained ground in this country to some extent. Some foreign papers lately mentioned excessive issues of Russian bank notes, and I therefore deem it my duty to acquaint the public with the real condition of affairs. According to the imperial ukase of Aug. 29, 1897, government bank notes are issued by the state bank in amounts strictly limited by the urgent needs of money circulation under gold security. The sum of gold securing the notes must not be less than half of the total sum of bank notes issued for circulation, when the latter does not exceed 600,000,000 rubles. A ruble is equal to 77 cents in American money. Bank notes which are in circulation over and above 600,000,000 rubles must be secured by gold at a rate of at least ruble for ruble. In 1904 there were issued up to August last bank notes to the amount of 130,000,-000 rubles and the month of August of the current year 40,000,000 rubles. Thus the total sum of bank notes put into circulation amounted to 800,000,-

"The gold reserve consisted at the end of August, 1904, of 944,000,000 rubles-namely, gold in circulation, 125,000,000; gold in bars, coin and assignments sanctioned, 728,000,000; gold abroad, 91,000,000; total, 944,000,000. Taking into consideration that the gold security for bank notes has been fixed by the ukase of Aug. 29, 1897, at 50 per cent for the first 600,000,000 rubles issued and at a rate of ruble for ruble for the following issues, the gold reserve securing 800,000,000 rubles in bank notes issued for circulation need not exceed 500,000,000 rubles, while it has reached 944,000,000 rubles—that is, there exists a surplus of 444,000,000 rubles, not including the large gold reserve in the government treasury, which is not entered within the balance of the state bank. These reserves consist of gold in bars and coin in the St. Petersburg mint, and sums in the hands of foreign correspondents abroad. "The issues of bank notes were brought about by two causes. The first cause was the deduction from the current account of the government treasury for military expenditures in the far east, where the expenses are paid in bank notes, and the second simultaneously with the same, the beginning of the revival of commercial transactions which takes place in the second half of each year with the beginning of the grain campaign, compelling the issue of large sums from the state bank. It must be noticed that the bank notes issued on account of the fall development of commercial transactions generally return to the bank at the end of the strained period of the grain campaign. These occurrences are repeated every year. Thus, in 1902 the revival of commercial transactions in the fall months demanded an increase of money placed in circulation by 156,000,000 rubles and in 1903 by 177,000,000 rubles.

"In the current year the demand for bank notes for commercial transactions must be considerable, as the crops in many regions of the empire are abundent, while at the same time in some foreign countries importing our grain the crops are unsatisfactory, a fact which will bring about an increase of exports.

"At the end of half a year from the beginning of military operations the comparative figures on the amount of our gold reserve in conjunction with the bank notes issued stand as follows: On Feb. 1 of the current year the gold reserve of the State bank consisted of 915,100,000 rubles, while there were only 598,600,000 rubles of bank notes in circulation. By Aug. 1, 1904, the gold reserve of the State bank consisted of 948,700,000 rubles, while there were only 695,300,000 rubles in bank notes in circulation. "As a whole, the war expenditures of Russia from the beginning of the campaign until the end of the year may be approximately placed at from 625,000,-3rd—Two fine through trains direct to 000 to 650,000,000 rubles. With regard to the means for the covering of this expenditure unforeseen by the budget it must be remarked that the reserve in the government treasury by Jan. 1, 1904, consisted of 312,000,000 rubles, and after the covering of all outstanding expenditures, according to the budget of 1904, it amounted to 130,-000,000 rubles, to which sum there must be added 135,000,000 rubles of $26.85 TO ST. LOUIS AND RETURN $26.85 tions and a complete guide to the fair, economies realized by the curtailing free, address A. B. Cutts, G. P. & T. A., of already sanctioned expenditures for the current year; also 282,000,000 rubles realized from the lease of 5 per cent treasury bonds and 150,000,000 rubles from the 3.6 per cent treasury bills. The government treasury thus has at its disposal approximately 700,-000,000 rubles, which is quite sufficient for the covering of the above expenditure without applying for any new

THE CHIEF OF NEW YORK CITY DISTRICT.

CHANGES ARE TO BE MADE

MEETING OF FEDERAL INSPEC-TORS WILL BE HELD IN WASH-TON ON OCT. 25.

Washington, Oct. 18 .- President Roosevelt Monday removed from office Robert S. Rodie, supervising inspector of the steamboat inspection service, Second district, located at New York. This action was taken on account of the disclosure in the report of the national commission appointed to investigate the General Slocum disaster. In accordance with the president's directions and in consonance with the recommendations of the Slocum commission, Secretary Metcalf of the department of commerce and labor has taken preliminary steps towards the removal of James A. Dumont, inspector of hulls, and Thomas H. Barrett, inspector of poilers, both of the port of New York. Statements of charges against them have been forwarded to them. The charges are based on the findings of the commission which investigated the disaster to the general Slocum. They are charged with neglect of duty, incompetency and inefficiency. They will be required, under the civil service regulations to make answer to the charges within a "reasonable time," the precise time being left to the discretion of Secretary Metcalf. It is expected that the answers of both Dumont and Barrett will be rerceived by Secretary Metcalf this week. Further carrying into effect the recommendations of the Slocum commission, Secretary Metcalf has called a meeting of the steamboat inspectors of the country to be held in Washington on Oct. 25, when the needs of the service will be considered thoroughly and, in accordance with the president's direction, such changes will be made in the regulations of the service as are recommended by the Slocum commis-

Colonel Kowalsky denied all the charges made against the Congo government, which, he claimed, was more advanced than many British South African colonies. He said all the uproar was caused by disgruntled British missionaries who had been unable to get big concessions in the Congo

Free State. Colonel Kowalsky was cordially received by the president, who expressed his pleasure that King Leopold had thus honored an American. After the matter has been carefully considered by the president and Secretary Hay, a reply will be made to the Congo Reform association.

PEARL FISHERIES.

How the Gems Are Obtained and Disposed of In Ceylon. Since Keats told how "the Ceylon diver held his breath and went, all naked, to the hungry shark" many poets have exhausted the resources of their imagination in trying to describe accident occurred in the ante-roon of the wonderful pearl fisheries of Ceylon. A few facts about them may be South End, where a dance was in of interest, if only as an antidote to so much poetry.

The pearl fisheries are the property of the government of Ceylon. The divers are paid no wages, but receive one-third of the oysters they bring up, the remaining two-thirds being taken cott under arrest and held several by a government agent and sold at public auction to speculative buyers, fainted when she heard the shot and who gather from all parts of the orient. The pearl fishery usually lasts from thirty to forty days, but does not take place every year. If it did the oyster banks would soon be ruined. Sometimes several years are allowed to

The diving is done after a primitive fashion, and the stories told about the marvelous length of time the divers will remain under water are quite unfounded. The record is 1 minute 49

The auction, which lasts for several days, is one of the most interesting sights to be seen in Asia. The oysters are sold in lots of 1,000, and of course the purchaser is buying "a pig in a poke." There may be no pearls in any of his oysters or the first one he opens may give him a fortune. This risk appeals to the gambling spirit of the orient, and pretty nearly all the races from the Persian gulf to Japan are represented at the sale. The prices paid usually start low on the first day. Then if the buyers have found pearls in fair quantities bidding is keen, and the prices jump skyward. One year they varied from 15s, 4d. per 1,000 on the first day to £12 17s. 10d. on the second.

It is remarkable that the fisheries are still so profitable, for there are historical records that they were worked there 300 years before the birth of Christ, and it is impossible to say how many years before that date.

How the Author Made His First Strike on a Murder Case.

The late Lafcadio Hearn, the well known author, was "a slip of a man." dark and not unlike the Japanese, whom he chose for his own and among whom his life went out, says the New York World. His genius was never questioned from the night in Cincinnati when by chance he happened to have thrown at him in the Cincinnati Enquirer office the assignment to do the Rufus-Schilling tragedy. Hearn had drifted into the office and was considered little better than a tramp, and he got the assignment because the rest of the staff

The deed was discovered Occasionally a man talks of "always | immediately afterward, and the half cooked remains were recovered. Mr. Hearn, who first visited the scene, seemed to steep himself in the awful horror. He felt of the crisp and blackened flesh, he smelled its sickening odor, he took the unrecognizable head in his hands and ran his fingers into the empty eye sockets, he felt the keen edge of the weapon with which the murder was committed, and as he did so the gray hair of the dead man, clotted with blood and brains, stuck to his hands. Asking a half dozen questions of the horrified bystanders, he bounded away and disappeared as suddenly as

Hearn's story took up three pages of the Enquirer the next morning, and it has been said that if ever there was a classic printed in a newspaper it was Hearn's story of the revolting murder.

Hearn went from Cincinnati to New Orleans, and there he developed in his dreamy sort of way. He was a good writer, but had absolutely no regard for facts. Before he left Cincinnati he got a steeple jack to carry him to a dizzy height on his shoulders. When he came down from the spire of the cathedral he wrote of the city as he had beheld it. It was a gem of descriptive writing. Genius breathed in every line of it, but the joke was that Hearn was so nearsighted that he couldn't see a thing five feet away from him.

Coal has become man's chief worker, and horse labor and human manual labor are slowly being pushed aside. In the great transformation it has been brain nower that has triumphed over brute strength. Man first sought to shift his burden to the backs of the beasts of the field, and the horse became his patient friend and assistant, but now he seeks to harness the elemental forces of nature to do his bidding. The burden is thus lightened without cruelty to any living creature. Neither man nor beast has had his labors increased, but steadily decreased. -St. Nicholas.

PEARL FISHERIES.

How the Gems Are Obtained and Dis-

posed of In Ceylon. Since Keats told how "the Ceylon diver held his breath and went, all naked, to the hungry shark" many poets have exhausted the resources of their imagination in trying to describe the wonderful pearl fisheries of Ceylon. A few facts about them may be of interest, if only as an antidote to so much poetry. The pearl fisheries are the property of the government of Ceylon. The divers are paid no wages, but receive one-third of the oysters they bring up. the remaining two-thirds being taken by a government agent and sold at public auction to speculative buyers, who gather from all parts of the orient. The pearl fishery usually lasts from thirty to forty days, but does not take place every year. If it did the oyster banks would soon be ruined. Sometimes several years are allowed to pass by without a fishery.

The diving is done after a primitive fashion, and the stories told about the marvelous length of time the divers will remain under water are quite unfounded. The record is 1 minute 49

The auction, which lasts for several days, is one of the most interesting sights to be seen in Asia. The oysters are sold in lots of 1,000, and of course the purchaser is buying "a pig in a poke." There may be no pearls in any of his oysters or the first one he opens may give him a fortune. This risk appeals to the gambling spirit of the orient, and pretty nearly all the races from the Persian gulf to Japan are represented at the sale. The prices paid usually start low on the first day. Then if the buyers have found pearls in fair quantities bidding is keen, and the prices jump skyward. One year they varied from 15s. 4d. per 1,000 on the first day to £12 17s. 10d. on the second.

It is remarkable that the fisheries are still so profitable, for there are historical records that they were worked there 300 years before the birth of Christ, and it is impossible to say how many years before that date.

Hearn's story took up three pages of the Enquirer the next morning, and it has been said that if ever there was a classic printed in a newspaper it was Hearn's story of the revolting murder.

Hearn went from Cincinnati to New Orleans, and there he developed in his dreamy sort of way. He was a good writer, but had absolutely no regard for facts. Coal Man's Chief Worker.

Coal has become man's chief worker, and horse labor and human manual labor are slowly being pushed aside. In the great transformation it has been brain nower that has triumphed over brute strength. Man first sought to shift his burden to the backs of the beasts of the field, and the horse became his patient friend and assistant, but now he seeks to harness the elemental forces of nature to do his bidding. The burden is thus lightened without cruelty to any living creature. Neither man nor beast has had his labors increased, but steadily decreased. -St. Nicholas.

PEARL FISHERIES.

How the Gems Are Obtained and Dis-

posed of In Ceylon. Since Keats told how "the Ceylon diver held his breath and went, all naked, to the hungry shark" many poets have exhausted the resources of their imagination in trying to describe the wonderful pearl fisheries of Ceylon. A few facts about them may be South End, where a dance was in of interest, if only as an antidote to so

The pearl fisheries are the property of the government of Ceylon. The divers are paid no wages, but receive one-third of the oysters they bring up. the remaining two-thirds being taken by a government agent and sold at public auction to speculative buyers, who gather from all parts of the orient. The pearl fishery usually lasts from thirty to forty days, but does not take place every year. If it did the oyster banks would soon be ruined. Sometimes several years are allowed to pass by without a fishery.

The diving is done after a primitive fashion, and the stories told about the marvelous length of time the divers will remain under water are quite unfounded. The record is 1 minute 49 seconds.

The auction, which lasts for several days, is one of the most interesting sights to be seen in Asia. The oysters are sold in lots of 1,000, and of course the purchaser is buying "a pig in a poke." There may be no pearls in any of his oysters or the first one he opens may give him a fortune. This risk appeals to the gambling spirit of the orient, and pretty nearly all the races from the Persian gulf to Japan are represented at the sale.

The prices paid usually start low on the first day. Then if the buyers have found pearls in fair quantities bidding is keen, and the prices jump skyward. One year they varied from 15s. 4d. per 1,000 on the first day to £12 17s. 10d. on the second.

It is remarkable that the fisheries are still so profitable, for there are historical records that they were worked there 300 years before the birth of Christ, and it is impossible to say how many years before that date.

How the Author Made His First Strike on a Murder Case.

The late Lafcadio Hearn, the well known author, was "a slip of a man." dark and not unlike the Japanese, whom he chose for his own and among whom his life went out, says the New York World. His genius was never questioned from the night in Cincinnati when by chance he happened to have thrown at him in the Cincinnati Enquirer office the assignment to do the Rufus-Schilling tragedy. Hearn had drifted into the office and was considered little better than a tramp, and he got the assignment because the rest of the staff

The murder had been committed in the Cincinnati gas works. The murderburned the body in a furnace at the gas works. The deed was discovered immediately afterward, and the half cooked remains were recovered. Mr. Hearn, who first visited the scene, seemed to steep himself in the awful horror. He felt of the crisp and blackened flesh, he smelled its sickening odor, he took the unrecognizable head in his hands and ran his fingers into the empty eye sockets, he felt the keen edge of the weapon with which the murder was committed, and as he did so the gray hair of the dead man, clotted with blood and brains, stuck to his hands. Asking a half dozen questions of the horrified bystanders, he bounded

Hearn's story took up three pages of the Enquirer the next morning, and it has been said that if ever there was a classic printed in a newspaper it was Hearn's story of the revolting murder.

Hearn went from Cincinnati to New Orleans, and there he developed in his dreamy sort of way. He was a good writer, but had absolutely no regard for facts. Before he left Cincinnati he got a steeple jack to carry him to a dizzy height on his shoulders. When he came down from the spire of the cathedral he wrote of the city as he had beheld it. It was a gem of descriptive writing.

Genius breathed in every line of it, but the joke was that Hearn was so nearsighted that he couldn't see a thing five feet away from him.

Coal Man's Chief Worker.

Coal has become man's chief worker, and horse labor and human manual labor are slowly being pushed aside. In the great transformation it has been brain power that has triumphed over brute strength. Man first sought to shift his burden to the backs of the beasts of the field, and the horse became his patient friend and assistant, but now he seeks to harness the elemental forces of nature to do his bidding. The burden is thus lightened without cruelty to any living creature. Neither man nor beast has had his labors increased, but steadily decreased. -St. Nicholas.

LET CONTRACT

Bids Were Opened on Laterals "A" "B" and "C"-Slipp-Gruenhagen Co. Lowest.

CONTRACT ORDERED DRAWN

Status of Fire Department Finally Settled Satisfactorily to the Firemen.

The most important business transacted by the city council at their regular meeting last evening was the letting of the contracts for laterals A, B and C in sewer district No. 1. Probably the most interesting was the passage at arms between Aldermen Halladay and Rowley over the motion to authorize the street committee to put a couple of drains across Kindred street. Alderman Rowley moved an amendment that the committee be authorized to fill up all the holes and drain all the puddles in the First, Fifth and Second wards. The gentlemen became quite personal in their remarks and both motion and amendment were lost.

The meeting was called to order by President Crust, the following aldermen being present: Messrs. Halladay, Gardner, Murphy, Johnson, McGinn and Robertson. Alderman Rowley came in a few minutes later. The minutes of previous meetings were read and ap-

The final estimate of Contractor John- L. W. Sherlundson on the first district sewer was read and on motion accepted. It amounted to $8,619.06.

The committee appointed to investigate the disputed electric light bill of W. J. Preston-John Hughes reported in favor of accepting 810 in full of account. Report accepted.

The report of the committee on a street lamp at the corner of 9th and Chris Johnson-13th streets, referring it to the aldermen from that ward to move any other light in that ward to that corner, was accepted.

The report of the committee on the bill of the Slipp-Gruenhagen Co., for work done on the city library was ac cepted and bill ordered paid.

The committee on the question of moving the Fourth ward hose house reported in favor of purchasing a plot of ground 25x75 feet on Thirteenth, between Oak and Pine, for $150, and reposed alley. The purchasing committee and the city attorney were given power to act in the premises, providing the right of way of the balance of the alley could be secured without cost to the

The team and wagon will respond to calls in those wards.

The salary of the poundmaster was ordered discontinued after November first, he to receive during the winter only the fees accruing.

The question of cement walk in front of the Globe Hotel came up. Some of the aldermen wanted to order the area filled up, while others wanted steel or iron work put in. THEY WANT A PARK

Residents of Southeast Brainerd are

Taking Matter up and Petition May be Circulated

The residents of Southeast Brainerd are talking up the matter of a park for that portion of the city. They are so far distant from the north side park that it is of practically no benefit to that portion of the city and they feel that as they have been taxed to help maintain a park on the north side that there should be a city park in their neighborhood. They believe also that it should be secured before all the desirable that they are beyond reach for park purposes. There is talk that a petition will soon be presented to the city council in regard to the matter.
